The Legend of the Catton Grove Highwayman

This is the legend of the Catton Grove Highwayman who ambushed rich travellers on Northern road out of Norwich and lived in the woods close by. He hid his ill-gotten treasure in special places throughout the ancient Catton Grove woodlands and rumours still echo that the treasure remains buried deep underneath your community.

Noted for his stealth and skill at evading capture, the Catton Grove Highwayman only stole from rich landowners to give to the poor of Norwich. As the legend grew, people began to call the Highwayman – Brave Robin of Catton Grove.

Of course, Robin's exploits were not well thought of by everyone, especially those he stole from and eventually after he ambushed the Lord Mayor of Norwich, the Sheriff of the city decided enough was enough and planned to set a trap.

Gathering together a number of well-armed men from the local troops, the Sheriff hid them in the trees at either end of the road which went through the wood and waited for the Highwayman to strike.

The trap was a stagecoach in which the Duke of Norfolk and some well-armed men travelled. The Duke trembled as the coach bumped along into the dark woods at dusk. He had heard many stories from his wealthy friends about the Highwayman's hold-ups, but he trusted the Sherriff and his men to capture this pest once and for all!

Sure enough, as soon as the coach left the protection of the city walls heading north into the woods, a hooded figure rode out from the shadows and stopped the coach with a command - 'Stand and Deliver'! – pointing two heavy pistols at the driver. Pulling hard on the reins, the driver brought the horses to a shuddering halt, throwing dust high up into the air.

From his hiding place in the woods, the Sheriff was watching and waiting for his moment to strike. His instructions to his men were to wait until the Highwayman dismounted and approached the door of the coach. At that point he would bring down his raised arm and shout "CHARGE".

All would have been lost for Robin at this moment, and his body would have been swinging from the gibet at Brazen Gate by the end of the next day. Yet something strange occurred. A bird - a Woodcock some said - called out just as he was preparing dismount his horse.

As a man who had spent much of his life living among the animals of the woods, Robin knew all the calls of the birds and the beasts. The Woodcock, he knew, only sang in the morning, so what was it doing, he asked himself, calling out at this time in the evening? Sensing something was wrong, Robin sat back in his saddle and listened carefully.

At first, he heard nothing but the sound of the wind and shuffling of the horse's hooves. Then suddenly from the trees ahead, he heard a horse's neigh. Realising now that something was very wrong, he pulled on the reins of his horse, intent on setting off at a gallop in the opposite direction.

The Sheriff, seeing the Highwayman preparing to escape, dropped his hand and ordered his men to attack. Kicking their horses into action, the Sheriff's men broke from the trees and rode at the Highwayman from two directions.

At the same time, the men who had been hiding inside the coach with the Duke of Norfolk, flung open the doors and jumped to the ground, brandishing their own weapons and preparing to cry – 'Drop your pistol or die!'

The words, however, stuck in their throats as before their feet could hit the road, there was a swirl of wind, a cloud of dust, and the Highwayman disappeared into the shadows of the woods.

Smoke rose as they fired their pistols, a slight cry of pain, yet nothing remained of the Highwayman but the mark of hooves in the mud of the road.

For the rest of the day the Sheriff and his men searched the woods. They found nothing but a small pool of blood under a large Oak tree where the Highwayman must have dressed his wounds.

And, from that day to this, that was the last that anyone saw or heard of the Catton Grove Highwayman.

That is, until today...

How to Complete the Treasure Hunt

First

- ▶ Collect a coloured envelope (a story clue, location and riddle are inside!)
- ▶ What is the Highwaywoman's map location? Find it on her 1819 Map
- ▶ Read the story clue and the riddle CAREFULLY
- ▶ Solve the riddle with your team (you should have a 4-digit answer)

Next

- ▶ Find the 2019 location by comparing the maps. (Example: The Secret Hideout in 1819 is now... Catton Grove Primary School in 2019!)

Then

- ▶ Go to page 3/4 of your Treasure Hunt Booklet
- ▶ Write the 1819 and 2019 map locations in a school solutions box. (You need the 2019 map location as this is the location you will be hunting for!)
- ▶ Write the 4-digit answer below the locations in the same box. This is the code which will unlock the correct treasure chest!

NOW HUNT!

- ▶ Look for the Treasure Chests around the school corridors
 - ▶ Next to each Treasure Chest there is clipped image of the 2019 Map location/place
- Once you find the correct image of the place use your solved riddle code to unlock the combination lock (HINT: numbers need to line up below the red dot!)

HURRAH!

- ▶ Now Stamp the stamp in the Loot Bag at the back of your Booklet
- ▶ Clip your completed riddle sheet to the clip board (keep this safe so no one else finds out your solution!)
- ▶ LOCK UP THE TREASURE CHEST by pushing the loop back in the hole and mixing the numbers up!
- ▶ Return to the hall to complete the final challenge
- ▶ Turn to page 5/6 of the Booklet and complete the 'WOW How Many?' challenge.
- ▶ Find a Treasure Hunt Leader, hand in your empty envelope and maps.
- ▶ Show the Treasure Hunt Leader your completed challenge and they will give you your next envelope and set of maps!

CONGRATULATIONS!

You've solved the clues, cracked the combinations, collected 7 golden treasures and had loads of WOW conversations!

World of Work = WOW!

On page 5/6 of your Treasure Hunt Guide there are boxes to fill in with your WOW conversations.

Use these questions as guide to talk to each other about 'WHO WORKS IN A PLACE LIKE THIS?'

- There are people working here who meet the public and those that work behind the scenes, what type of jobs do they have?
- What services and products are need by this place to make it run and be successful?
- Do deliveries come to this place? What are they delivering?
- Who produces those deliveries?
- What work do you think you'd like to do in this place?
- What questions would you ask someone works here?
- Is there a job you can think of which would make this place run even more successful?

Once you have identified the places on the 2019 Our Catton Grove Map have a think and talk to each other and list as many jobs that are needed for each of the businesses to operate and be successful.
